PERSONAL PROFILE

With a Bachelor's degree in French and Psychology, I am driven by a profound passion for language, cognition, and literature. My interdisciplinary academic journey has focused on exploring the intersections between language, identity, memory, and narrative, exemplified by my research on L'identité et la quête de soi, with a focus on Annie Ernaux's L'Autre Fille. Complementing this foundation, I am trained in web development, particularly front-end design, which has strengthened my ability to communicate complex ideas clearly and creatively. I am now eager to expand my understanding of linguistics and cognitive science through advanced interdisciplinary study, with the aim of contributing to innovative research and the ethical application of language and AI technologies.
